

Keputusan Resmi Setelah Seminggu...Kim Kwan-jin dan Kim Ki-chun Mendapatkan 'Special Pardon' Beruntun

Description

M. Yoon Seok-yeol granted a special amnesty ahead of the Lunar New Year. This is the fourth special grant since Yoon Seok-yeol took office. High-profile officials, including Kim Kwan-jin, the former defense minister who ordered the cyber command to manipulate the comments, and Kim Ki-chun, former secretary to former President Park Geun-hye, who was involved in the cultural blacklist allegations, are included in the special amnesty.

Kim Kwan-jin and Kim Ki-chun have both had their sentences confirmed in court, the government explained. The special amnesty applies to 980 people, including the two. Last month, Kim Dae-yeol and Ji Young-gwan, former operations chiefs of the Ministry of National Defense, who were sentenced to two years in prison for illegally spying on the families of the Saviour victims, have also withdrawn their appeals. There are also questions about the provision of prior consultation and the government's response was that there were no promises made and the grant is solely the President's decision.

Other members in the special amnesty include former lawmakers like Lee Woo-hyun, Kim Seung-hee, Sim Ki-joon, and Park Ki-chun, seven politicians, and four media professionals such as MBC's Kim Jang-gyeom and Ahn Kwang-han. A total of 45,000 administrative sanctions, including driving license revocation, have been mitigated. Overall the special amnesty applies to a variety of individuals with different professions backgrounds.

MBC News highlights important people whose sentences have been confirmed by the court and are now given a special amnesty. MBC News invites the public to be involved in the news by tipping them anytime.
