

“Phantom of the Opera” Memperpanjang Pertunjukan Broadway Akibat Permintaan Tinggi: Tambah Warna pada Hiburan Teater Anda!

Description

“The Phantom of the Opera” Broadway musical extends its run

Broadway Musical “The Phantom of the Opera” extended its closing date until April 16, 2022. The decision was made after an unexpected increase in ticket sales, with $2.2 million in sales last week alone. This comes as a surprise after the initial announcement of the show’s closure in February due to declining ticket sales.

Increased Sales Leads to Extended Run

After initially announcing that the show would be closing in February due to declining ticket sales, the unexpected bolster in sales and a busy Thanksgiving week led to the decision to extend the run until April 16, 2022. The show’s producer, Cameron Mackintosh, expressed his amazement at the response to the show’s ending, stating that almost everything available for sale has been sold out.

35th Anniversary Celebration

The musical, which will celebrate its 35th anniversary in January, continues to attract audiences with its music by famed composer Andrew Lloyd Webber. The show, directed by Hal Prince, won seven Tony Awards in 1988 and is the longest-running show in Broadway history.

Quotes from Mackintosh and Relevant Statistics

According to The New York Times, Cameron Mackintosh, the show’s producer, expressed his surprise at the phenomenal response to the show’s closing. Additionally, the unexpected increase in sales, with $2.2 million in sales last week, has contributed to the decision to extend the show’s run. This information supports the decision to extend the run of the Broadway musical “The Phantom of the Opera.”

Conclusion

The unexpected bolster in ticket sales and a busy Thanksgiving week has led to the decision to extend the run of the “Phantom of the Opera” on Broadway. With plans to celebrate its 35th anniversary in January, the musical continues to attract audiences with its timeless music and captivating storyline.
