Champion of Holocaust Remembrance

Friedländer, who is based in Berlin, has dedicated her life to Holocaust remembrance. She tours schools across Germany, encouraging the younger generation to never forget the past traumas that continue to shape society today. She speaks out against rising antisemitism and right-wing extremism, urging people to embrace unity rather than division.

Recognition and Gratitude

Anna Wintour, the editor in chief of Vogue, praised Friedländer's cover feature as "brilliant and inspiring." The presence of a Holocaust survivor on the cover of a fashion magazine serves as a reminder of the dark period in history that must never be forgotten. As the number of survivors dwindles, raising awareness for their stories becomes increasingly important.

Survival and Endurance

Friedländer's life story is one of survival and endurance. She was only 12 when Hitler came to power and witnessed firsthand the atrocities of the Nazi regime. Despite enduring unimaginable trauma, she chose to embrace life and share her story with others. Her message is one of perseverance and the importance of coming together as a community.

Lessons from the Past

In the face of conflicts like the Israel-Hamas war, Friedländer urges young people to focus on their shared humanity rather than their differences. She emphasizes the importance of unity and understanding, drawing from her own experiences during one of the darkest periods in history. Friedländer's story is a testament to the power of resilience and the enduring human spirit.

Legacy and Gratitude

At 102 years old, Friedländer reflects on her life with gratitude. She credits her mother's advice to "try to make your life" as a guiding principle that has shaped her journey.
